Bahrain to impose VAT from January 2019

Our Bahrain Correspondent

BAHRAIN's parliament has approved the introduction of five per cent value-added tax (VAT) in the kingdom from January 1, 2019.

According to the state-run Bahrain News Agency (BNA), the country's House of Representatives voted on the introduction of VAT in an extraordinary session ordered by royal decree.

The bill, which would see Bahrain join the UAE and Saudi Arabia in implementing VAT, must also be approved by the parliament's Upper House, which is expected to hold a similar session soon.

"The introduction of VAT will be a big challenge for the local Bahrain market," said Michael Camburn, Bahrain Indirect Tax Leader at Deloitte Middle East. "Businesses now have less than four months to be prepared for these changes," said Mr Camburn and added that "if organisations have so far not yet started, they should start immediately assessing the impact of the tax on their operations."

The implementation of VAT was one of a number of reforms announced by Bahraini authorities, which also includes changes to its pension system and a new subsidy programme.

Recently, Bahrain announced a fiscal overhaul meant to balance its budget by 2022, backed up by a $10 billion economic support package from Saudi Arabia, the UAE and Kuwait.

UAE tourists to get VAT refund from this Nov

Our UAE Correspondent

THE UAE will be refunding its five per cent Value Added Tax (VAT) on all goods and services to millions of tourists starting November this year.

The Federal Tax Authority (FTA) said, the VAT refund system will initially be available at the three main UAE airports in Abu Dhabi, Dubai and Sharjah. The refund system will be installed at 12 exit points, including land borders and ports by the end of this year.

The minimum amount that makes tourists eligible to claim their VAT refund will be AED250 (₹ 5,000), according to the guidelines issued by the FTA and Tourist Refund Scheme operator, Planet. Tax-free shopping will be possible for all tourists above 18 years old.

Until December 16, the three airports will be the only points at which VAT could be refunded, but from that date onwards, nine more locations will be added: Al Maktoum International Airport, Abu Dhabi Port Zayed, Al Ain Airport, Al Ain land border, Fujairah Airport, Ras Al Khaimah Airport, Al Ghuwaifat land border, Hatta land border, and Dubai Mina Rashid Harbour, according to Planet's website.

UAE govt allows visitors extend stay by 60 days

UAE's new visa rules for visitors, students, widows, divorcees take effect on October 21

Our Dubai Correspondent

THE UAE's new visa rules will allow visitors and tourists to apply for new UAE entry visas without leaving the country, and also grant one-year residency extensions to widows and divorced women.

The new rules will come into effect from October 21, 2018.

According to officials from the Federal Authority for Identity and Citizenship (ICA), the new rules will allow visitors to be granted a new entry permit for another 30 days and twice, regardless of the duration of the original visa.

Those found violating or delaying in applying under the new rules will be granted a 10-day grace period, after which they will be fined AED 100 per day. However, for the next 30 days the extension will be granted from the date of the previous entry permit's expiry.

Visitors can, before the end of the first extension, present a request to receive a second extension for an additional 30 days.

There will be an AED 600 fee for extending entry permits, per extension. The fee does not, however, apply to those residing in the GCC and the companions of GCC citizens, as well as those in possession of special entry permits.

Regarding the renewal of visa for children sponsored by their parents after completing their university or high school, or after turning 18 years of age, they will be given a one-year residency visa that can be renewed for another year. They have to pay a fee of AED 100 for one-year visa, and another AED 100 for renewing it for another one year.

Additionally, widows and divorced women can extend their visas by a year from the date of death or divorce and will also cover any children residing in the UAE. For the procedure, the government will charge AED 100 for cancelling the previous visa and AED 100 for the new one-year residency visa.

The new visa rules aim to give women the opportunity to adjust their social and economic status before leaving the country.

Those who do not meet the conditions set out in the new rules, but subject to a special humanitarian condition, have to pay a bank deposit of AED 5,000.

In case of violations, visitors and tourists will have to pay AED 100 per day, starting from 10 days after the expiry of their visas.

Marriott's hotel expansion to create 5,000 jobs in the UAE

Marriott plans to further enhance its footprint in the UAE with the addition of more than 20 new properties in the next five years

Our Dubai Correspondent

INTERNATIONAL hotel chain Marriott International said, it expects to add 11 new properties in the UAE by year-end, with a robust development outlook over the next five years.

The hotel giant plans to further enhance its footprint in the UAE with the addition of more than 20 new properties in the next five years. The company expects this development pipeline could generate over 5,000 new jobs in the country.

Year-to-date, the company has added six new properties and is scheduled to add five more in the country – bringing its portfolio in the UAE to 59 properties and over 17,000 rooms across six Emirates by the end of the year.

Two of the company's openings this year feature regional brand debuts – the eco-conscious Element Hotels brand, which opened earlier this year in Dubai, and the Edition brand, which is scheduled to open in Abu Dhabi later this year, Marriott said in a statement.

Arne Sorenson, President and CEO, Marriott International said, "Our success in the Middle East stems from our long-established presence in the market and the value we deliver to our owner partners. It is the trust owners have in Marriott International, combined with our differentiated brands and collective strength of our global platform, that has put us in a position to further expand our portfolio in the country and strengthen guest loyalty."

WB offers support to rebuild Kerala

AAT News Service

THE World Bank is looking to extend support of up to $500 million to the Government of Kerala's comprehensive flood recovery efforts and to build greater resilience to future shocks. The support is subject to Government of India's formal request and will have to be approved by the World Bank Board of Governors.

As an immediate step, the bank is ready to reallocate up to $55 million from within its current portfolio of projects in India to support the state's reconstruction investments.

Under the proposed recovery and resilience framework, the World Bank will help the Government of Kerala finance and build resilient institutions, systems, and infrastructure to help achieve the state government's vision to build back better.

The state of Kerala suffered severe floods and landslides during June-August 2018 affecting up to 5.4 million people, one-sixth of the state's population. Extreme and intense rainfall between August 1 to 19, 2018 (164 per cent above normal) exacerbated the prevailing situation.

In the aftermath of this calamity, and following a request by the Ministry of Finance, Government of India, a Joint Rapid Damage and Needs Assessment (JRDNA) was conducted in September 2018 jointly by the Government of Kerala (GoK), the World Bank, and the Asian Development Bank (ADB). The as-essment has estimated the recovery needs at ₹ 25,000 crore or $3.56 billion for the priority sectors alone. The sectors that suffered the worst damage and need the largest recovery budgets are transport, rural infrastructure, livelihoods including tourism, housing and urban infrastructure.

The proposed recovery and resilience framework will follow a phased approach. First phase will attempt to address early recovery needs and setting the stage for a resilient recovery by helping the state raise funds from domestic and international sources. The second phase of the framework aims to improve the overall resilience of the state to future shocks over the medium to long-term, primarily through policy and institution strengthening. These engagements will cover a range of affected sectors such as water resources, transport, social protection, environment, disaster risk management, etc.

"Disasters, like the one we witnessed in Kerala, can roll back decades of development and are a fundamental threat to economic development and the fight against poverty. The World Bank stands committed to support Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan's vision of converting this tragedy – one of the biggest that the state has seen – into an opportunity to build a more resilient Kerala for its people," said Junaid Ahmad, World Bank Country Director in India.

The people of Kerala, their communities, are its biggest strength. Over the past months they have resolutely brought relief to the affected families and continue to contribute in the reconstruction efforts. Through targeted programmes the resilient recovery framework will aim to support such communities through technical assistance, people centered early warning systems, and investments in social protection such as enhanced safety nets.

South Asia Growth

SOUTH Asia is firming up its position as the world's fastest-growing region with growth topping 6.9% in 2018 and set to accelerate to 7.1% next year. It will extend its lead over East Asia and the Pacific, says the World Bank in its twice-a-year regional economic update. The latest edition of the 'South Asia Economic Focus, Budget Crunch', finds that the region's growth performance is uneven across countries – with Afghanistan notably bucking the upward trend – and mainly driven by domestic demand. Further, the report warns that a more turbulent external environment, manifested by trade wars and capital outflows from emerging markets, calls for prudent economic policy and fiscal discipline. Most South Asian countries generate low-tax revenue and run large budget deficits, often made worse by economic shocks and election cycles. At 4.4% of its GDP, South Asia's fiscal deficit is projected to be the second largest in the world this year after the Middle East and North Africa region. The average fiscal deficit over the last three years has been around 5.5% in Pakistan and above 6% in the Maldives, India, and Sri Lanka. "Budget deficits in South Asia are among the highest in the world, and this could be storing up trouble for the future," says Hartwig Schafer, World Bank Vice President for South Asia Region. "South Asia's fiscal weaknesses reduce its ability to address external shocks or economic slowdowns. It would be wise to use these good economic times for countries to get their budgets in better shape." While fiscal challenges vary across the region, the report notes that tax revenue is consistently low across most South Asian countries and at rates below that of other developing countries with a similar income per capita, sometimes by a vast margin. Although some countries have expanded their tax bases and curbed tax exemptions and fraud, revenue remains lower than government expenditures, creating large fiscal deficits that need to be financed through public borrowing. South Asian countries have also favoured procyclical approaches to spending – with expenditures going up fast as their economies expand – that amplifies boom-and-bust cycles. Together with public debt, hidden liabilities, arising from non-viable borrowing by state-owned enterprises, the failure of infrastructure projects involving the private sector, and non-performing loans in commercial banks, should be closely monitored. While fiscal outcomes vary across the region, the fiscal situation in each country reveals more profound development challenges, which range from large security expenditures in conflict-affected countries, weak discipline by sub-national governments in federal states, to the high cost of service delivery in island nations. "Substantial government spending is understandable, even beneficial if well-invested, given South Asia's enormous development needs," says Martin Rama, World Bank Chief Economist for South Asia Region.

Stakeholders should co-op to ensure foolproof aviation security: Home Minister

Civil aviation security continues to be an extremely challenging task as the sector remains an important target for terror outfits. The new Anti-Hijacking Act, 2016 is a testimony to Indian government's concern for expedient measures to be taken during hostile acts of seizure or exercise of control of aircraft which jeopardise the safety of persons and property

THERE is a need for co-operation among all stakeholders to ensure foolproof aviation security, said Union Home Minister, Rajnath Singh. While addressing the International Aviation Security Seminar on 'Global co-operation: Secure aviation', organised by the Central Industrial Security Force (CISF) in its golden jubilee year, in New Delhi, Mr Singh said that "I advise all stakeholders in the aviation sector, especially the Bureau of Civil Aviation Security (BCAS) and the CISF to infuse new technology for aviation security and ensure a judicious blend of trained human resources and modern security infrastructure."

Underlining the terrorist threats to the aviation sector, the minister said, civil aviation security continues to be an extremely challenging task, as the sector remains an important target for terror outfits. The terrorists always look for opportunities where they can draw the maximum attention and media coverage.

Use of innovative methods to launch attacks on aviation sector is already in plenty. The case of Shoe Bomber in 2001, use of liquid explosives in London (2006) and the case of Underwear Bomber in Amsterdam

(2009) clearly indicate that the terrorists are pushing the limits and even their underpaments to hit the aviation sector, he added. Advocating global best pracignored.

"The Brussels and Istanbul airport attacks have shown the vulnerability of airports, especially from the city side and it highlights the changing threat perception. Keeping the threat of aircraft hijacking by terrorists, India has reviewed its legislation and preparedness towards such exigencies. The new Anti-Hijacking Act, 2016 gives effect to The Hague Convention of 1971 and the Beijing Protocol of 2010."

"The new Act is a testimony to our government's concern for expedient measures to be taken during hostile acts of seizure or exercise of control of aircraft which jeopardise the safety of persons and property," he said.

"The government is serious in terms of strengthening aviation security and regulatory oversight. As a matter of policy, unlike TSA (Transportation Security Administration) in the US which is also into physical security, our government has taken a conscious decision to separate the functions of security regulator from those being performed by regulated entities in the aviation ecosystem. This insulation addresses the fundamental problem of conflict of interest encountered in the regulatory framework," he said.

The overarching goal is to enhance global security by implementing uniform security measures around the world, a goal that cannot be achieved without an unwavering commitment from all quarters, said Mr Singh.

tics in aviation security, Mr Singh said, "we should adhere to stricter implementation of internationally-agreed guidelines and norms. Introduction of updated, advanced technology in all airport processes would enhance our security capabilities.

Underlining that there is not the slightest space for relaxation in aviation security, the Union Home Minister said the strength of any chain is determined by the strength of its smallest unit. Therefore, the security of these smaller airports should never be new threats to aviation facilities," he said.

Stating that India has witnessed massive expansion in the aviation sector, Mr Singh said "we have been constantly upgrading our security strategies and ensured its alignment with

The students should make it a habit to read good books right from a young age: V-P

AAT News Service

STUDENTS should develop compassion and service in their minds, said the Vice-President, Venkaiah Naidu.

While addressing the gathering after going through the innovation and skill development activities at Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan's Sri Venkateswara Vidyalaya, in Tirupati, Andhra Pradesh, Mr Naidu said that students should have values in their lives. They should respect their parents, teachers, and fellow citizens.

There is a need to develop compassion and service in minds and everybody should work together for the development of the country with a sense of collective responsibility.

"The students should make it a habit to read good books right from a young age. We have many books that build personality and these books have innumerable values that our ancient saints, modern pioneers, and others have given with their experiences," he added.

"Education is losing its relevance as it is treated as a means to get certificates and grades. There should be revolutionary changes in our education system which makes future generations of our nation," said Mr Naidu.

Agri food value chain will substantially reduce harvest and post-harvest losses

AAT News Service

A developed agri food value chain in the country can not only enhance the farm income of farmers, but also make available quality food to the consumers. It will also help in substantially reducing the harvest and post-harvest losses occurring at various stages of the agri food value chain, said Radha Mohan Singh, Union Minister for Agriculture and Farmers' Welfare.

While addressing the gathering at the Assocham's exhibitions, conferences & roundtables on 'Agri food value chain partnerships – End-to-end approach', the minister said that the Modi government is committed to promoting agri food value chain-related activities at local, regional, national and also international level.

eNAM (National Agriculture

Market) was launched by the government to reduce the supply chain by integrating the value chain participants. So far, 585 mandis have already been added to the eNAM portal and within the next two years, 415 additional mandis will be added, said Mr Singh.

In order to address the problem of fluctuations in the prices of tomatoes, onions and potatoes, 'Operation Green' was launched with an outlay of ₹ 500 crore in this year's budget. Under this scheme, Farmer Producer Organisations, agricultural logistics, processing facilities and professional management will be promoted.

Under the Mission for Integrated Development of Horticulture, the Mission Organic Value Chain Development for North Eastern Region was approved on January 2016 with a total outlay of ₹ 400 crore.

Besides this, the government has approved a new Central-sector scheme – Pradhan Mantri Kisan SAMPADA Yojana (Scheme for Agro-Marine Processing and Development of Agro-Processing Clusters) for the period 2016-20 coterminous with the 14th Finance Commission cycle.

The Yojana is a comprehensive package, which will result in creation of modern infrastructure with efficient supply chain management from farm gate to retail outlet, added the minister.

AAY benefits 7-crore people in Maharashtra

AAT News Service

ANTYODAYA Anna Yojana (AAY) has been implemented in Maharashtra, benefitting seven-crore people, which cover 75 per cent of rural and 50 per cent of urban population. As per the National Food Security Act, 2013, 45-lakh metric tonnes (MT) (wheat + rice) is required in Maharashtra per annum, said Ram Vilas Paswan, Union Minister for Consumer Affairs, Food and Public Distribution.

While speaking during the review meeting with Food Corporation of India officials, in Mumbai, the minister further informed that the allocation to drought-affected 14 districts in Maharashtra has been made by the Central government at an economical rate.

As against an allocation of 6.58-lakh MT, 4.90-lakh MT has been lifted so far. The allocation is valid till December 2018 (economic cost for 2018-19 is ₹ 2,446 per quintal for wheat and ₹ 3,310 per quintal for rice), added Mr Paswan.

The minister also took review meeting with Western Regional Office of the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS). He said that BIS should reach the common man and make them aware of their rights and provisions available with them for getting their products/jewellery tested and registering complaint, if required.

The BIS Act, 2016 provides framework for making hallmarking of precious jewellery compulsory, which would ensure that the common consumer always gets value for his money and BIS needs to be ready for the same.

There is a need for close surveillance over the BIS licence holders, so that they always comply with the requirements of relevant Indian standards and, thus consistently produce and make quality goods available to general public, added the minister.

The government is intending to bring more & more products under mandatory certification to ensure manufacturing of safe and better quality products in India, aiding 'Make in India' movement, which will also help the manufacturers to compete in the international market.

The Controllerate of Quality Assurance (Vehicles) (CQA (V)), Ahmednagar, Maharashtra is the first laboratory in India under Ministry of Defence to be recognised by BIS under its Lab Recognition Scheme. The minister assured CQA (V) that the government would give priority to defence labs in getting BIS recognition.

WAN connectivity to district and subordinate courts

AAT News Service

ONE of the important components of eCourts Mission Mode Project Phase-II (2015-19) is establishment of wide area network (WAN) connecting all district and subordinate court complexes, spread across the country.

The project has made significant progress under the guidance of e-Committee of Supreme Court of India in computerising 16,089 district and subordinate courts of the country through installation of case information software, hardware and local area network in courts, thus making judiciary ICT-enabled for efficient and transparent functioning with a positive overall impact on the justice delivery system.

The Department of Justice awarded the prestigious eCourts' WAN project to BSNL at a cost of ₹ 167 crore for establishing WAN, connecting 2,992 district and subordinate court complexes across the country, including 547 court complexes with no connectivity.

An online monitoring tool prepared by NIC for tracking real-time progress and monitoring of pan-India WAN project against the set baselines was launched in September 2018.

BSNL has completed feasibility studies of 458 hitherto unconnected district and subordinate courts under the project.

The activities of BSNL with clear phases, tasks, milestones and timelines are monitored regularly by the department. The project is expected to be completed by December 2018.

THE technology backbone of the government – the National Informatics Centre (NIC), in a joint initiative with NIC Services Incorporated (NICSI) has set up Centre of Excellence for Data Analytics (CEDA).

While inaugurating CEDA, in New Delhi, the Union Minister for Electronics & IT, Ravi Shankar Prasad said that today is the age of data, and data is power and information highway is equally important as national highways. "India has emerged as a big centre of data analytics and today the whole world is looking at us".

Unveiling the potential that data analytics has in transforming the way the government schemes are run, Mr Prasad also released a white paper on 'Data analytics in government', which brings to the fore the need for a data-driven decision making and policy formulation in government across the entire spectrum of its activities.

Data analysis has been traditionally done since the time of Kautilya for effective decision making, but today with great capabilities achieved in information and communication technologies, data analysis can help in effective and efficient governance, said S S Ahluwalia, Union Minister of State for Electronics & IT.

CEDA will aid in fast-tracking the adoption of advanced analytics in government. In the era of rapid digitisation of various government functions and services under Indian government's flagship 'Digital India' programme, the Centre aims at strengthening citizen service delivery through data-driven governance.

CEDA has been created to support government departments to unlock the hidden potential of the data that they are generating as a part of the governance processes, and use it to improve the overall governance. It will provide world-class data analytics services to the government.

Through its service offerings,

CEDA aims to: Be a focal point and centre of expertise in data analytics for government and public sector; help ministries in assessing impact from the analytics solutions and help in understanding changes to organisational roles & responsibilities; facilitate faster & cost-effective technology adoption; promote capacity building and enable the departments to self-service an-

Data quality assurance services – The centre will provide data profiling tools & techniques and necessary expertise to analyse the data for quality issues. While data cleaning shall be done for making the data ready for analytical use, recommendations shall also be given in order to help the department take necessary actions to further improve their build data analytic solutions that address a generic data analytics problem that is prevalent across departments or states. Such a solution will then be made available to other departments/states as a pre-built analytic solution that can be operationalised for the new states at a cost-effective and a much faster rate.

Knowledge management – CEDA will implement knowledge

It also aims at providing following services to the government:

data collection process.

Custom-built data analytics solutions – Build analytic solutions that are specific to a particular problem, which may relate to a single or a combination of departments.

Develop reusable assets – This will be one of the many USPs of the centre. CEDA will repository to collect learning from across projects and share best practices across initiatives and will ensure usage of best practices in across the government.

Capacity building and self-service analytics – Besides creating the analytics solutions for the government departments, the Centre's focus would also be to train and enable the departments to do self-service analytics by simplifying the data in a manner in which an administrator can use it with minimum technical support.

Change management – CEDA will help ministries in assessing impact from the analytics solutions and help in understanding changes to organisational roles & responsibilities. The shift towards the digital age, propelled by 'Digital India' programme, has led to tremendous growth in data related to various aspects of government functions and services.

As the next logical step, government departments are now looking to exploit this mount of gold mine by investing in analytical solutions that can turn this data into insights. CEDA proposes to establish strong partnerships with academia and industry to ensure that the cutting-edge technologies and quality expertise are brought in to help the government take advantage of the booming analytic wave.

Through its focussed efforts, the Centre aims at providing data analytics services to the government and help in solving complex policy issues through data-driven decision making to ensure effective formulation and implementation of various development initiatives that will ultimately benefit the citizens.

DigiVAARTA was launched in Delhi with the express intention of spreading awareness on DigiDhan, and also to spread popularity of BHIM's barcode-based merchant payment mode with merchants and traders at large. This launch has two components:

An SMS application which operates from NIC's SMS Gateway on a special short-code service allotted for this purpose by Department of Telecommunications with the number '14444'. Citizens will receive SMS messages which are pre-approved by experts and the response messages will be made available for further action, analysis and research.

The government proposes initially to pay for the citizen's response so as to promote citizen's engagement and make the awareness programme completely free for the citizen.

A mobile application version of DigiVAARTA can be accessed and used by smartphone users. This app can perform many more functions beyond chat, offers audio-video tutorials etc. The initiative aims to enable citizen government dialogue and engage citizens in educational and outreach programmes.

With the mobile phone as its interface, DigiVAARTA's content and communication style is interactive and adaptive. The same message can be used to interact with both smartphone and feature phone users. It can engage the user over multiple channels in a two-way interaction, using different content styles (stories, images, videos, discussions and polls) in different languages.

DigiVAARTA has been launched to spread awareness amongst the common public on digital payment topics such as BHIM, Aadhaar-enabled Payment Systems (AePS), Bharat QR, and Security Do's and Don'ts to begin with.

REAL Madrid and Croatia midfielder Luka Modric has ended the decade-long reign of Lionel Messi and Cristiano Ronaldo as FIFA's best player when he was crowned as the world's top footballer of this year.

The glittering ceremony at London's Royal Festival Hall, home to London's Symphony Orchestra, saw a galaxy of football stars descend on the venue renowned for mixing British royalty with the bright lights of the entertainment industry as the new kings and queens of football were crowned.

The show was hosted by Golden Globe and Screen Actors Guild Award-winning actor Idris Elba. Modric edged out contenders - Liverpool's Egyptian forward Mohamed Salah and Ronaldo - to bag the honour.

Both Ronaldo and Messi have won the FIFA award given under different names over the years five times each.

Modric was a key player in his club side Real Madrid's third straight Champions League title, his country Croatia's historic journey to the World Cup final for the first time. Modric had also won the Golden Ball for the best player at the World Cup.

"It was an unbelievable season, the best season in my life. I'm still not realising how good a year I had collectively, individually, and I'm very proud for everything I achieved this year and it will be remembered forever," he said.

Asked on breaking the Messi-Ronaldo monopoly, he was humble as ever, saying, "I'm not thinking about that right now. I'm very pleased to have picked up this award. There are so many good players - those two and many more - that it makes you feel proud to beat them to

it. It shows you that your hard work has paid off. It's been a night when all my dreams have come true."

Questioned about one highlight of the year, he said, "There were so many that choosing one the extra motivation of captaining my side. Unfortunately, things didn't work out for us and we lost, but I still see it as a success to have got that far. We did something that will go down in history."

Player and Women's coach respectively.

Belgium's Thibaut Courtois was crowned the best goalkeeper while the FIFA Fair Play Award was given to German forward Lennart Thy, who missed a France's World Cup-winning coach Didier Deschamps was awarded the Best FIFA Men's Coach. Legendary Brazilian forward Marta and first-time nominee Reynald Pedros were named the Best FIFA Women's week's training and a match for his then side VVV-Venlo in the Dutch Eredivisie to donate stem cells for potentially life-saving treatment for a patient battling leukaemia.

Salah won the Puskas award for best goal for his strike against Everton in the Merseyside derby last December. He scored 44 goals in his debut season with Liverpool, which reached the Champions League final.

The FIFA FIFPro World 11 was also named featuring David De Gea; Dani Alves, Marcelo, Sergio Ramos, Raphael Varane; Eden Hazard, N'Golo Kante, Luka Modric; Cristiano Ronaldo, Kylian Mbappe and Lionel Messi.

According to FIFA, on its 25th anniversary of honouring world football's top performers in 2016, it decided to take the game's most prestigious individual award in a new, modern direction.

"The idea was to connect directly with the football world. To speak the language informally used by those who love the game - and who consider a player, a coach or a goal to be simply 'the best'. The Best FIFA Football Awards were born under this sign. It is a celebration made for and by the most important actors of the football scene - the players, coaches and fans. They are the ones making the decisions.

"The best trophies for player and coach of the year, in both men's and women's football, will be the result of a combined voting process, in which 50 per cent of the decision will be taken based on the choices of captains and head coaches of all national teams around the globe.

"The other 50 per cent will be split between the result of an online public ballot and the submissions from a selected group of over 200 media representatives from six continents. Players, coaches, fans and media all have a say. An award voted directly by those who are the heart and soul of the football world," an explanation of the awards on the FIFA website says.

"This event should be all about the game. Nothing else," sums up FIFA President, Gianni Infantino.

The world body says the voice of the football fan had never been taken into account this way before. The Best FIFA Football Awards came forth as a celebration of those who love the sport, encapsulated by the inception of the inaugural FIFA Fan Award - an annual recognition of remarkable moments that feature supporters as protagonists.

"We want to be close to the football fans. We must. The game would be nothing without them," explains FIFA's Deputy Secretary General, Zvonimir Boban.

A group of FIFA legends drew up lists of 10 players and 11 coaches for the two men's awards. Likewise, another expert panel compiled a list of 10 players and as many coaches for the two women's awards.

The award winners for these categories were chosen by an international jury consisting of national team captains, national coaches, members of the media and football fans. Each of these four groups of voters (coaches, captains, media, fans) accounted for 25 per cent of the total vote.
